

Better Buffers

Vegetated buffer zones protect our streams by reducing erosion, slowing down runoff, and filtering pollutants. They also provide habitat and food for insects and wildlife.

University of Kentucky
College of Agriculture,
Food and Environment
Cooperative Extension Service