

Overwatering your lawn wastes water, encourages runoff, and weakens turf making it more disease prone.

Water Wisely

When you leave footprints in the lawn, your grass is telling you it needs water. Water deeply and infrequently to encourage deep root systems which improve infiltration. This promotes healthier, drought tolerant turf, and reduces wasteful runoff.

University of Kentucky
College of Agriculture,
Food and Environment
Cooperative Extension Service